STUDENT INTERACTIVE SESSION REGARDING ZERO FILAMENT DRIVE

A very informative session on environmental sustainability was taken by Angelina Jose Joji on 20th January, 2022 at 2.00 PM, virtually via Google meet. The session covered topics such as sustainable development, energy conservation and zero filament drive. These terms were defined and steps to achieve these were discussed. The program was conducted as part of the Academia Week 2021-22 to spread awareness about sustainability. There was a ppt presentation regarding sustainability, academia and zero filament drive.

WEBINAR ON RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

This seminar dealt with the basics of research for UG students. The resource person described how to choose a wide area and then limit it down to a study topic. She also discussed the differences between qualitative and quantitative research methods. She also stressed the need of following MLA Style, which helps readers navigate and interpret a work by providing recognisable cues that relate to sources and borrowed information. She urged everyone to follow the same format so that there is uniformity of style within a field. Students presented their concerns and worries during the Q&A session, which were adequately addressed.

RESILIENCE – THE MINDFUL PROJECT A SOCIAL OUTREACH PROGRAM

With the gradual pace of the globalized world, the individuals are facing the conditions where there is a lack in the process of getting an awareness on the importance of mental health and its significance in their lives experiencing the struggles. Along with the onslaught of the pandemic and allied personal and social issues, there was a recognition in the need to impart knowledge in the students that make up the population of vulnerable categories. Awareness of one's own status of mental health, the various possible issues and concerns that alters the stability of human minds and the existence of various mythical, stereotypical and hypocritical attitudes of the societal establishments needed to be imparted as an awareness session to the educated young minds. Especially, when hit with the advent of the pandemic that led to various emotional crises that accelerated the concerns of lives and livelihoods, we, the students of 3rd BA Communicative English of the batch 2019-2022 conducted a series of programs including seminar, webinar, online surveys and social media oriented enlightening sessions. With an aim of educating the young minds on the vulnerability of human minds and the aids of preserving the health of emotional aspects of individuals in a fast moving world run by competitions and competitors, we made sure that the event was undertaken through the narratives of imparting an awareness on the responsibilities, aids and commitments to oneself and to the societal beings around.
